The Lory Student Center dress code policy is designed to ensure our employees are able to do the work that they are charged to do. Our appearance reflects upon ourselves and Colorado State University. All employees are expected to dress appropriately for the position they hold, which can include casual, business casual, business, and/or a designated uniform. All employees will abide by all health and safety rules relating to their specific assignments (i.e. hairnets for Dining Services employees). Each department supervisor shall be the final arbiter of the appropriateness of attire.

Attire worn, including face masks/coverings, while working should align with the university's non-discrimination statement, "Colorado State University is committed to providing an environment that is free from discrimination and harassment based on race, age, creed, color, religion, national origin or ancestry, sex, gender, disability, veteran status, genetic information, sexual orientation, gender identity/expression, or pregnancy." Additionally, employees are encouraged to "get their Green on" for CSU "spirit day" Fridays and support the Rams by wearing CSU gear.

CSU recognizes that the ever-changing COVID-19 situation presents a need to pivot and adapt. All students, staff, faculty, and visitors must wear a face mask while in all university buildings (find further information on the CSU COVID-19 Health and Safety Policy). Face masks/coverings must fit snugly and cover the mouth and nose. This requirement is in place to help reduce the risk of spreading COVID-19 among our university community and to comply with public health orders. Additional information or updates to expectations can be found at:

No dress code policy can cover all contingencies so employees must exert a certain amount of judgment in their choice of attire to wear to work. If you experience uncertainty about acceptable attire for work, please ask your supervisor.
